Church Hill the fattest neighborhood in Richmond

Hoping to raise awareness as part of the first-ever RVA Strategic Plan for Overweight and Obesity Prevention, the Richmond City Health District has named Church Hill "the Fattest Neighborhood in Richmond":

To raise awareness of overweight and obesity challenges in Richmond, we are identifying areas of the city where neighbors need work on learning healthier lifestyles.

Following the recent opening of Proper Pie, Sub Rosa, and WPA Bakery, Church Hill has seen an estimated 3% increase in BMI over the last 18 months – the largest net increase in the city.

Overweight and obesity in Richmond affects all people regardless of gender, age, race or ethnicity. It is a preventable condition that affects quality and length of life. Overweight and obesity are contributors to many preventable chronic health conditions including cardiovascular disease, diabetes, some cancers, arthritis, asthma and disability.

The mission of the Richmond City Health District is to promote healthy living, protect the environment, prevent disease and prepare the community for disasters.
